Extruded High Fat Soymeal

Our Soy Meal is produced from New Zealand grown, GE free soybeans. The oil is extracted using a gentle cold pressing process, without the use of chemicals.

Following oil extraction, the meal is extruded and roller milled using carefully controlled heat, pressure and friction. This process helps deactivate naturally occurring anti nutritional factors such as trypsin inhibitors, improves protein availability and enhances overall digestibility for livestock.

The combination of cold pressing and extrusion preserves valuable amino acids and energy while delivering a highly functional protein ingredient.

Soy meal is not a complete feed, but a concentrated protein and energy ingredient and should be incorporated into a balanced ration.

Key Benefits

- 43% crude protein to support muscle development, milk production and overall condition
- 14.6 MJ/kg ME from natural oil and protein
- Highly digestible protein, naturally rich in lysine
- Low starch and suitable for inclusion in starch managed rations
- Naturally occurring oil contributing additional energy
- Cold pressed, extruded and milled for improved digestibility and nutrient availability
- New Zealand grown and processed for quality, traceability and supply security
- GE free production aligned with premium feed markets

Supply

Consistent year round production with flexible weekly or monthly supply and short or long term pricing options. Suitable for a variety of grain and meal feeding systems and compatible with silo storage.

Available in 25kg, 1000kg or bulk deliveries

Major Nutrients (Dry Matter Basis)
